Medi-Cal Exchange vs. Medicare –

According to the California Department of Health Care Services, Medi-Cal is a state program that provides health coverage to low-income individuals, while Medicare is a federal program for older Americans and some younger people with disabilities. Medi-Cal is administered by the state of California, while Medicare is administered by the United States government.

Medi-Cal is available to all California residents who meet certain income and asset requirements, while Medicare is available to people who are 65 years old or older, as well as some younger people with disabilities. Medi-Cal also covers pregnant women and children under the age of 19, while Medicare does not.

Medi-Cal provides a wider range of coverage than Medicare, including dental and vision care, as well as prescription drugs. Medicare provides coverage for hospitalization, skilled nursing facilities, and hospice care.

Medi-Cal is funded by both state and federal government sources, while Medicare is funded entirely by the federal government. Medi-Cal has a larger pool of providers and a wider range of services available than Medicare.

Medicare beneficiaries who also live in California can enroll in Medi-Cal Extra Help, a program that helps low-income Medicare beneficiaries pay for their medications. Medi-Cal Extra Help is not available to Medicare beneficiaries who live outside of California.

In summary, Medi-Cal and Medicare offer different types of health coverage, with Medi-Cal being more comprehensive and available to a wider range of people. Medicare is a federal program that is available to people who meet certain age and disability requirements, while Medi-Cal is a state program that is available to all California residents who meet certain income and asset requirements.
